

I would like to comment on the proposed BPL. After going through the recent blackout, I must say that as both an electric consumer and amateur radio operator, that there must be a better way to implement this BPL without causing harmful interference. I also would like to note that if the current power lines cannot handle a black out situation, then they probably won't be able to handle an extra signal for internet service. Thank you.